

Team Work Makes the Dream Work.

Imagine this scenario: you've spent hours researching, narrowing down and deciding on your wedding suppliers. You've received a quote, via email, and their expertise seem undeniable. They can do what you want, and they've got what you need. Great. Except... the florist was a bit rude about one thing, and the photographer was grumpy about something else. Not enough to put you off them completely, but now you feel like you've got to walk on eggshells around them.

One of our brides told us, 'the best piece of advice [she] was ever given was; you need to get on with your wedding suppliers. Because you're going to be spending all day with them'.

Each supplier has an impact on the other, and a strong and professional dynamic is essential to keep your day as relaxed as possible. So how can you guarantee you're working with suppliers you, and your venue, are happy to work with?

Most venues will have 'recommended suppliers', but here at Bilsington Priory we only work with companies and suppliers we know, like and trust. We're not looking at your wedding with each supplier in isolation, we've got the bigger picture planned out and years of expertise to help you navigate it. We're happy to communicate directly with suppliers, so that you don't have to worry about constantly passing messages between us and them. This is especially important on the day, so that the photographer doesn't drive your guests in one direction as the canapes arrive from another.

We've got years of experience in the industry, which means we're almost guaranteed to have heard of, or worked with your chosen suppliers. But if you're stuck for suppliers, we're happy to help you find one for your special day! The Kent wedding industry is a close-knit network of people, full of businesses with wonderful reputations and we pride ourselves on the friendly relationships we've built with our favourite suppliers.

So, allow us to take the pressure off you, and we'll help create a team of suppliers who can grant you the most wonderful wedding day.